"The Man from Painted Post"

The Man from Painted Post was written by Douglas Fairbanks himself assisted by his scenario staff It is based on Judson Gregory's recent magazine story Silver Slippers

In staging this production the Fairbanks company travelled from California to the most picturesque spot in Wyoming near Lake where a ranch of 100 000 acres with 20 000 head of cattle was secured as a background for this thrilling Western story dealing with the cattle rustlin days

Never before has Douglas Fairbanks had a better opportunity to present to the best advantage not only his own individuality but his every talent as actor as well

Not satisfied with the ability of the ordinary cowboy obtainable for motion pictures Douglas Fairbanks himself journeyed to Cheyenne prior to the production of this picture where he staged up the winners of the great Western Rodeo Meet These champions are accorded ample opportunity to disclose their worth in The Man from Painted Post,' and present many thrilling situations of actual realism

This is the first time that a motion picture has ever been staged in the territory used for The Man from Painted Post The rolling prairie with the snow capped mountains in the near to gether with many views of typical ranch life offer some of the most picturesque scenes of the West ever screened

Where's Painted Post? Why there's a thing—we can just about figure what sort of a place it was by the man who came from there—maybe the place couldn't hold him—looks as though there's few places on earth big enough to accommodate his speed Anyhow that's how we all know him—just The Man from Painted Post and jumpin Jehosophat what a whoopin tearin sunuvagun he was! And when he made up his mind to go after anything he shore did land—he landed 20 30 Smith O K hands down (On the quiet The Man from Painted Post is none other than Douglas Fairbanks)

See him Friday and Saturday at the Cosmopolitan

First Anniversary

Just one year ago Mr W T Stigall gave a splendid demonstration of his confidence in the people of Auburn Park by opening his second Auburn Park Drug Store at 80th and Halsted Streets That his enterprise was justified is proven by the large patronage this store has enjoyed during its one year of existence

The foundation of the success of the Stigall stores is the strict adherence to the principle of giving just what is wanted at prices consistent and generally lower than elsewhere These stores merit the good will of the public and their generous patronage shows that the public is appreciative of their efforts

Two Weeks Spent on Battle Scenes

Director Walsh and Cohorts of Indians and Mexicans Do Their Bit in Producing The Conqueror

USE $5 000 ON AMMUNITION

Real Cannon of 1830 Period Built Specially for Combat and Many Actual Shells Exploded—Great Picture at Cosmopolitan Next Tuesday October 22

The forests of Cahuenga Canyon near Los Angeles echoed for two weeks to the resounding noise of battle while Director R A Walsh of the William Fox studios was taking his battle scenes for the mammoth production starring William Farnum in The Conqueror

During these fourteen days 600 horses sped excitedly back and forth across the spacious fields adjoining the canyon Four hundred and fifty Mexicans alike number of Indian braves and a hundred men and women representing settlers on the border were carried daily to the ground where they went through all the motions of warfare fiercer and more primitive than that which now rages in Europe

Studied research rewarded Director Walsh with an exact knowledge of the artillery of the 1830 period and he personally superintended the building of twenty three cannons of Revolutionary type for use in the battle Nine of these were actually cast from iron and were just as useful for dramatic as then photo types Fifteen others were wooden and were lighted with flare puffs for good photographic effect in the battle

The Fox studio spent $5 000 for ammunition alone during the making of this production Three thousand dollars went for cannon munitions while $2 000 purchased powder and chemicals for the muzzles used and for the making of hand grenades

For the time being the mammoth Fox studio was converted almost into a munitions plant so great was the amount of ammunition needed for the big feature

In fact the scene 500 shots were allowed to each of the nine usable cannons An unlimited supply of blank cartridges was given to each musket bearer

St. Sabina's Card Party

The St Sabina branch of the Holy Name Society will give a card party next Friday evening Oct 26th in the parish hall Throop and 78th Sts Many beautiful prizes have been donated and an evening of pleasure is assured to all attending

The big feature of the evening will be the pie eating contest between two of Auburn's best known citizens Mr John Hickey and Mr Tim Sullivan Keen rivalry in things athletic exists between these two gentlemen which dates back to the wheelbarrow race at the Improvement Club picnic last July when Mr Hickey got so far ahead of Mr Sullivan that he made the latter think that he was standing still and now Tim is out to get Mr Hickey's scalp There was considerable wrangling over handicaps John claiming that Tim had the advantage because the latter's brother is said to drive a pie wagon but Tim who is known for his sportsmanship evened up matters by giving John a headstart of 1 cut Mr Hickey's followers known as the Highlanders have announced their intention of attending in a body to cheer for their favorite Mr Sullivan's admirers the Racine Ave Commuters led by Colonel Newman have reserved the entire north end of the hall as evidence of their loyalty and confidence in Tim

Getting a little closer we find in Mr Hickey's corner
Mr Fitzpatrick
Mr Fox
Mr Engemann

And in Mr Sullivan's corner we find
Col Newman
Mr Dan Kelly
Mr James Maloney

And as Mr Leibrid was the only neutral to be found in all Auburn he will referee the bout

Big Men—Beautiful Women—Majestic Climaxes—The Simplicity of Love—Heroic Struggles—Primitive Passions—and Brawn vs. Brawn for the solace of a pair of beautiful eyes. A Love that makes the modern pledges a pigmy of comparison. A love story of infinite charm built upon a climax that makes the spectator gasp for breath. A Romance of General Sam Houston and the bewitching "Tennessee Rose." From a blushing backwoodsman to Constable, then Sheriff to Governor to General who repulses the enemy, defeats the multitude and rolls up his sleeves for a man to man fight upon which depends his ultimate reward.

AND WHAT A FIGHT 2,000—GENUINE INDIANS FIGURE—2,000 ACTION! THRILLS! SUSPENSE! HUMOR! ROMANCE

"THE CONQUEROR" has its locale in Tennessee about 1810, and on the Mexican Border and in Texas in 1840 to 1845. It is an R. A. Walsh masterpiece. Scenes full of fire and action rouse one to the highest pitch of excitement. No more realistic battle scene can be imagined than when nearly a thousand United States soldiers and Indians clash with Mexican soldiers. It is the greatest spectacle yet produced on the screen. Try to picture in your mind the intensely dramatic and fearful invading of a convent, with its circle of a hundred white-robed desperate sisters, by the Mexican invaders, with their final rescue by Cavalymen. This is but one of the gripping scenes in "THE CONQUEROR." "THE CONQUEROR" is a remarkable photo-drama, it overshadows previous Fox records, it quickens the pulses—holds one enthralled.

A Railroader's Yarn

By Edith Barnard Delano

Mike —— runs No. —— on the B. & O. An old timer is Mike and proud of it. Could have had a big job with the Brotherhood any time for years past, but doesn't think he'd enjoy life unless he could see it from a cab window. Might have been G. M. if he'd had more book learning, but Mike doesn't miss that—plenty of man-sense to make up for it. And he's friends with everybody; calls low railroad presidents by their first name, and they say the Old Man himself asks Mike's advice at times.

"There's been a good deal of talk lately among the men about those Liberty Bonds, and Mike's a friend of 'em. He was leaning out of his cab window in Camden Station the other day and another engineer who is known among the boys as something of a tightwad was leaning out of his, a couple of tracks over.

"Going to buy one of these new Liberty Bonds, Bill?" Mike asked.

"I am NOT," said Bill, sos' you couldn't mistake what he meant "I keep my money in a savings bank. That's good enough for me. How'd I know this country'll win the war? Who d'you reckon will give me the money on a Liberty Loan Bond, if Germany wins, hey? No, sir; I guess the savings bank'll carry me along for a while longer!"

Mike scratched his ear and grinned; he has a catching sort of grin, has Mike. "Bill Edson," said he, "you remind me of something that once came to my notice, because I was in it. Most be a matter of thirty years ago, now. I was on my first passenger engine, and a beauty was she, a thunderer for those days, just out of the shops, and I was prouder o' her than I was of the twins.

"It was along in the spring some time, and the crews coming east all reported the worst flood conditions ever known. I brought my train down over Harper's Ferry when the yellow mud was boiling down underneath like as if all Niagara was let loose. Got as far as Cumberland, and received orders to leave the train there and take my engine back and run her out on the Harper's Ferry bridge and leave her there. Yes, sir, LEAVE HER THERE. I didn't believe those orders were straight until I found out that every other big engine anywhere within reach of the bridge had gotten the same. Well, we did it; the bridge was crammed full of engines, all the bridge could hold, by nightfall.

"It wasn't until I got back to Baltimore, some days later, after the flood had gone down, that I got wind o' the way it happened. John M. King was V. P. in those days, and a better railroader never lived, bar none. He happened to be in charge of the Central Building right then, and reports of floods kept coming in and coming in, and everybody got more and more worried. One bridge after another went down, one mile of track after another was washed out. Finally some fellers from the maintenance of way rushed in and said the Harper's Ferry bridge would sure be the next to go. King thought a minute, and then gave orders that every heavy engine it would hold should be run out on her and left. They thought King was crazy, but they didn't know him. 'Why, Mr. King, there's no use sending all that new rolling stock down with the bridge,' said one man. King just gave him a look. 'If the Harper's Ferry bridge goes down, son,' said he, 'we won't need the rolling stock.'

"And say, Bill Edson" (Mike's hand was on the throttle, and he'd got his signal to pull out) "the Harper's Ferry bridge is still standing! I guess she'll carry you and me along for a while longer, hey?"

And the point of the story is that Bill Edson bought a Liberty Bond the next morning.

Accommodating Uncle

Uncle wants to borrow
All that I can lend—
Says he has to have it
To accommodate a friend.

Never knew him scarey,
Never knew him rash;
Must be somethin' doin'
When Uncle calls for cash.

Guess the need is mighty
That connects him so tight.
They say he grudged his money,
They said he wouldn't fight.

But they don't know Uncle;
And they'll learn a lot,
When they come to reckon
For the final shot.

Michael Myers of 6226 Aberdeen St. is recovering from injuries received in a fall from a building on which he was working.

Mrs. Lulu Culloden of West Marquette Rd. has completely recovered from a recent severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Turner of 73rd St. have the sympathy of neighbors and friends in the loss of their baby, who died last Monday from pneumonia.

Miss Margery Salmon of Throop St. is organizing a knitting club to meet Saturday afternoons during the winter.

ARE YOU RUPTURED?

We have performed wonders in the way of holding Ruptures with this Patented Wonder Pad. At the same time wearers will say, "I hardly know I have a truss on." The slight pressure required to hold it in place is a revelation to tortured wearers of old style, hard pad trusses.

Easily washed. It can be kept clean, odorless and aseptic at all times. It positively cannot slip.

Special attention to infants and children.

Englewood physicians who are acquainted with Clausen's Patented Wonder Pad Trusses give them their heartiest endorsement.

Call and we will gladly tell you about them.

Englewood Theatre

Last season Geo. F. Partridge, the producer of high class burlesque, put out a show with the announced purpose of culling all the laurels on the Columbia Circuit. He called that production "Big Bim Bam Boom." Having accomplished the Mr. Partridge looked around for new fields to conquer and his prince naturally fell on the American Circuit. He decided to put the show on the Air route on which he launched the Bim Bam Boom Show. Who is the leading author of burlesque material? Mr. McCree solved for him two exceptional vehicles, the Correct Dope and Triple Exit. The laugh interest is fast and furious in both of them and the comedians had them in stitches throughout the running. They have never been called upon to handle material so rich. Though he was to secure a competent cast and he selected the service of Joe Lyons who is one of the most pleasing comedians in this form of entertainment. The other engaged to give Mr. Rose competent support are Virginia Wilson, prima donna, Thelma Deavette soubrette, Sidal Bennett ingenue, Al. K. Bush blackface comedian, Robert Sargent straight and interlocutor, George Bickham and Jack Shaw. The next step in connection with the organization was to procure a worthy chorus and the producer took much pains selecting each girl as he might have occasion to select his forces for a dance or a fancy dance. Put the show together that it said. He has the chorus of 18 girls gathered into a burlesque chorus in many days and each girl is provided of a pleasing and charming personality as well as beauty. A wardrobe of unprecedented magnificence has been given the girls and they appear in many bewitching dances and ensembles and contribute more of amusement or more than is usually found in burlesque. There are several specialties in the show which are all during the progress of the show and which distinctly new. A number of high class the performance and [illegible] the audience home happy.
